The American College of Psychiatrists

SUMMER 2024

From the President

Dear Colleagues:

I am delighted to write you in my new role as President of The American College of Psychiatrists. The College is a very special organization to me – from the quality of its continuing education, to the opportunities for interacting with and learning from valued colleagues, this organization has a unique combination of professional development and warm, friendly camaraderie that is rare among the many groups to which I belong. I'm grateful for the professional and personal opportunities afforded me since I joined The College almost 20 years ago, and it's been a privilege to watch other Members have the same growth experience.

The jewel in the crown of The College is of course the Annual Meeting, and this year's meeting was absolutely outstanding, with New Orleans providing a unique backdrop for our week together. Our Program Chair, Francis Lu, Past President Gene Beresin, and the Program Committee put together a well-organized and well-thought-out program, bringing us a spectrum of insights on public mental health education, inclusion, lifestyle psychiatry, and an exploration of how the politics of racial resentment impacts mental health. I found it to be an enjoyable, topical, and engaging meeting, and my congratulations to Francis and the Program Committee on a job well done.

Ensuring the continuation of outstanding scientific programs is less challenging due to our membership resources – we traditionally draw on our membership for many presentations and we are fortunate that College Members represent the very cutting edge of knowledge in their respective areas. The 2025 meeting will be no different – the theme of the program is “Opportunities and Challenges for Psychiatry in the 21st Century,” and it will offer something of interest for everyone: a panel session that will address the ethics of using AI in psychiatry; a plenary on the clinical application of genetics; talks on Instagram and mental health advocacy, and combating misinformation on TikTok; a debate on telepsychiatry; and much, much more. And I'm happy to report that the ever-popular “Breakfast with the Experts” is not only back but has been expanded to two mornings. That means 16 roundtables over Thursday and Friday morning, all of which will be hosted by experts in a variety of topic areas. These sessions will enable you to tap into the expertise of seasoned College Members and exchange information and ideas in an informal setting. We'll also be continuing the poster session initiated at last year's meeting.

In addition to the scientific program, the Annual Meeting has always afforded us the opportunity to have fun while renewing friendships and forming new ones. Bring your spouse, friend, or family and enjoy Kauai, the "Garden Isle," a tropical paradise whose scenic trails, picture-perfect cliffs, and iconic Na Pali coast will leave you breathless. For those who have not visited Kauai, it's one of the most magical places on earth and my favorite Hawaiian Isle, and I very much hope you will be able to join us.

But back to business. The College continues to be extraordinarily successful in the development and maintenance of the PRITE and CHILD PRITE exams, which remain the gold standard for assessing psychiatry residents. Nearly all residency programs in the United States and about half in Canada utilize the exam to evaluate their residents and the effectiveness of their curricula. In addition to being a staple of graduate medical training in psychiatry, the exams serve as an important source of prestige and revenue for The College. The hardworking PRITE Editorial Board met earlier this month in Boulder to put together the 2025 exam.

In addition, a new PIPE exam has just been released. If you're in need of self-assessment CME, make sure to take advantage of the discount that College Members receive for purchasing the exam. At a discounted cost of $205 for 30 credit hours of self-assessment CME, you'd be hard-pressed to find a better value for a tool that will enable you to assess your knowledge and determine areas in which to improve.

We are near to completing the strategic planning process initiated by Past President Dr. Larry Faulkner. Multiple changes to our governance processes have been recommended which will make The College a more inclusive and welcoming place. Please see our Executive Director's description in his column for the details.

Our membership is critical to our success, and fortunately, Membership in The College continues to be strong. At the 2024 Annual Meeting in New Orleans, we welcomed 26 New Members into The College and elevated six current Members to Fellowship status. Thanks to the diligence of the Committee on Membership, our newest recruits include some of the leading lights in research, academic, and clinical psychiatry.

Speaking of membership, If there is anything I can do to enhance your College experience during my term, please let me know. I hope all of you have an enjoyable rest of your summer. I look forward to seeing you in Hawaii!

Sincerely,

George A. Keepers, M.D.

From the Executive Director

I am writing this column from Boulder, Colorado, where the PRITE Editorial Board is hard at work putting together the 2025 PRITE and CHILD PRITE exams. The meeting commences on a Tuesday and wraps up on Saturday morning. During that time, the Editorial Board Members review the questions they have written throughout the year, selecting which ones to include in next year's administration. While it's a lot of work, we try to build in ample time for socializing and exploring the surrounding area. Boulder is a particular favorite of the Editorial Board, both for the quirky city itself and its lovely mountain setting.

The meeting also provides me with a chance to reflect on the first half of the year. In previous columns, I have written about the strategic planning initiative currently underway at The College. The Board created seven strategic planning sub-committees focused on various aspects of the organization. These sub-committees met in 2023 and came up with a list of strategic recommendations.

In February, in New Orleans, the Board met to review these recommendations and discuss the future direction of The College. While there remains some work to be done before a final plan is adopted, some common themes emerged. Several of the sub-committees called for greater transparency about the way The College is governed. This includes doing a better job communicating how committee appointments are made and how the leadership selection process works. The Board also discussed changing committee appointments from two, three-year terms to a single four-year term, with the goal of providing Members more opportunities for committee service.

Improving diversity and inclusion was also a consistent refrain. Proposed strategies include encouraging existing Members to nominate colleagues from underrepresented groups, changing membership and fellowship application materials to better solicit information about how candidates would add to the richness and diversity of The College, and working with the Scientific Program Committee to improve representation in the Annual Meeting program, Several sub-committees also recommended offering a more direct pathway to membership for former Laughlin and PRITE Fellows. One way to achieve this is the creation of a new Associate Member category for the first five years after their fellowships end, with the possibility of conversion to full membership at the conclusion of that time period.

This is just a small sampling of the ideas that were generated so far during the strategic planning process. Stay tuned for more details as the Board continues to chart the future direction of The College.
